CLASS ACTION

JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

FIRST AMENDED CLASS ACTION AND DERIVATIVE COMPLAINT

Plaintiffs David Jacobs and Gary Hinds, on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, and derivatively on behalf of the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, by and through their undersigned counsel, submit this Class Action and Derivative Complaint against Defendants Federal Housing Finance Agency, in its capacity as Conservator of the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, and the United States Department of the Treasury.

NATURE AND SUMMARY OF THE ACTION

1. This case about Delaware and Virginia corporate law is a class action brought by Plaintiffs on behalf of themselves and several classes (the “Classes,” as defined herein) of holders of preferred and common stock issued by either the Federal National Mortgage Association (“Fannie Mae”) or the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (“Freddie Mac,” and, together with Fannie Mae, the “Companies”), seeking damages and equitable relief, including rescission and restitution, and a derivative action brought by Plaintiff Jacobs on behalf of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, seeking damages and equitable relief, including rescission and restitution, in each case in connection with the Third Amendments to the Amended and Restated Senior Preferred Stock Purchase Agreements, dated August 17, 2012 (the “Net Worth Sweep”), between Defendant United States Department of the Treasury (“Treasury”) and Defendant Federal Housing Finance Agency (“FHFA”), in its capacity as conservator of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. Plaintiffs allege the following based upon personal knowledge as to themselves and their own acts and upon information and belief as to all other matters.

2. Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac are privately owned, publicly traded companies chartered by the United States Congress. Fannie Mae’s bylaws designate that the Delaware General Corporation Law (“DGCL”) controls for purposes of its corporate governance practices and procedures, and Freddie Mac similarly has designated the Virginia Stock Corporation Act (“VSCA”), each to the extent not inconsistent with the Company’s enabling legislation and other federal laws, rules and regulations. 12 C.F.R. § 1710.10. There is no federal corporate law applicable to Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac or the corporate law issues this complaint raises, other than Delaware and Virginia law as so incorporated.

3. Although both Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac were chartered by the United States Congress, the federal government did not guarantee, directly or indirectly, the securities or other obligations of Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac. The Companies are stockholder-owned corporations, and the Companies' public disclosures indicated that clearly to investors. Until the conservatorship discussed below, the Companies' businesses were self-sustaining, consistently profitable, and funded exclusively with private capital raised through the issuance of several classes of stock, including the stock purchased by Plaintiffs and the other members of the Classes.

4. In July 2008, Congress enacted the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 ("HERA"). HERA created FHFA to replace the Companies' prior regulator and authorized FHFA to appoint itself as conservator or receiver of the Companies in certain statutorily specified circumstances. HERA left in place the federal charters of the Companies and did not alter the provisions of their bylaws, implemented pursuant to federal law, specifying that Delaware and Virginia law apply for corporate governance purposes. Also in July 2008, James Lockhart, Director of the Office of Federal Housing Enterprise Oversight ("OFHEO") and subsequently the Director of FHFA, stated that the Companies were "adequately capitalized" and both Henry Paulson, then-Treasury Secretary, and Benjamin Bernanke, then-Chairman of the Federal Reserve, testified before Congress that each Company was "adequately capitalized."

5. Less than two months after HERA was passed and federal regulators declared publicly that the Companies were adequately capitalized, FHFA placed the Companies under conservatorship and appointed itself as conservator of the Companies. When the conservatorships were announced, FHFA claimed that its goal was to return the Companies to normal business operations, and that once the Companies had been restored to a safe and solvent condition, the conservatorships would be terminated. The conservatorships did not alter the rights or privileges of the common or preferred stock under the charters of the Companies or Delaware or Virginia law, and the Companies made public statements at the time to the effect that the Companies' common and preferred stock would continue to remain outstanding.

6. The common and preferred stock of the Companies have continued to trade publicly since the commencement of the conservatorships, and the Companies have filed periodic reports under the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934, as amended.

7. When they agreed to conservatorship, the boards of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac ceded control of the assets and powers of the Companies to FHFA as conservator. Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac each continues to have "boards of directors" in name, but these boards were appointed by FHFA, they report only to the conservator, and they contend (erroneously) that they owe duties only to the conservator. As conservator, FHFA has ultimate responsibility for, and sole control of, the affairs of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac so long as the conservatorships continue.

8. The day after the conservatorships were imposed, Treasury exercised its temporary authority under HERA to enter into two virtually identical senior preferred stock purchase agreements with FHFA to purchase Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac securities (the "PSPAs"). Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac each issued a newly created series of Senior Preferred Stock, and in return for Treasury's commitment to purchase this stock, Treasury received $1 billion of Senior Preferred Stock from each of the Companies and also received warrants to acquire 79.9% of each of Fannie Mae's and Freddie Mac's common stock at a nominal price. Treasury also established a $100 billion lending facility for each of the Companies (each later increased in size by two subsequent amendments to the PSPAs, first to $200 billion each and then to an amount established by a formula that may be greater (but not less) than $200 billion each, adjusting for the amount of any deficiencies experienced by the Companies in 2010, 2011, and 2012 and any surplus existing as of December 31, 2012). Pursuant to the lending facilities, Treasury would make quarterly purchases of Senior Preferred Stock from each of the Companies so as to ensure that each Company's liabilities did not exceed its assets. Each time Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac draws on the Treasury lending facility, the aggregate liquidation preference of the Company's Senior Preferred Stock increases by the sum of all additional amounts paid by Treasury to the Company pursuant to the draw. The newly issued Senior Preferred Stock of each of the Companies ranked senior to all other classes and series of stock and entitled Treasury to receive either a cumulative cash dividend of 10% of the "outstanding liquidation preference," or an "in kind" stock dividend equal to 12%, which amount would be added to the liquidation preference. The terms of the Senior Preferred Stock thus gave Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac the discretion to pay dividends in kind rather than in cash.

9. The Senior Preferred Stock of each Company has an aggregate liquidation preference equal to $1 billion (1 million shares at $1,000 per share) plus the sum of all additional amounts drawn by each Company on Treasury's funding commitment. The warrants provided Treasury with an "upside" return on its investment in each Company, beyond the 10% cash or 12% in-kind dividend on the Senior Preferred Stock, so as to allow Treasury to capitalize from its investments in each Company if they returned to profitability.

10. Treasury as an investor exercises de facto control over the Companies, including through its Senior Preferred Stock and warrants to purchase the Companies' common stock, as well as Treasury's control of the provision of funds to the Companies, Treasury's consent rights over the Companies repaying the Senior Preferred Stock or exiting conservatorship, and Treasury's influence over FHFA officials, many of whom were employees of Treasury. With such de facto power over the Companies' financial condition and operations, Treasury is in a position to, and does, direct FHFA with respect to determinations affecting the Companies and their stockholders.

11. Delaware law applies to the Senior Preferred Stock issued by Fannie Mae under the terms of Fannie Mae's bylaws and the Amended and Restated Certificate of Designation of Terms of the Senior Preferred Stock. Virginia law applies to the Senior Preferred Stock issued by Freddie Mac under the terms of Freddie Mac's bylaws and the Amended and Restated Certificate of Designation of Terms of the Senior Preferred Stock. The Amended and Restated Certificate of Designation for the Fannie Mae Senior Preferred Stock that Treasury purchased from Fannie Mae states that it "shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the United States, provided that the law of the State of Delaware shall serve as the federal rule of decision in all instances except where such law is inconsistent with the Company's enabling legislation, its public purposes or any provision of [the] Certificate." The Amended and Restated Certificate of Designation for the Freddie Mac Senior Preferred Stock contains identical language, with "the law of the Commonwealth of Virginia" in place of "the law of the State of Delaware." Thus, when interpreting the terms of Treasury's Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac Senior Preferred Stock, federal law incorporates the law of the State of Delaware and the Commonwealth of Virginia, respectively.

12. Soon after the commencement of the conservatorships, FHFA took two steps that required each Company to issue billions of dollars in Senior Preferred Stock to Treasury. First, the Companies were forced to declare substantial non-cash accounting losses, including write-downs of the value of their tax assets and loss reserves. Second, unusually for a conservator of companies taking write-downs, FHFA also elected to have the Companies pay Treasury discretionary dividends on the Senior Preferred Stock to Treasury in cash (rather than in kind), resulting in the Companies needing additional incremental capital to fund the cash dividend payments.

13. FHFA's accounting treatment of Fannie Mae's and Freddie Mac's deferred tax assets created a windfall for Treasury. At the commencement of the conservatorships, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac carried large deferred tax assets on their balance sheets. As conservator, FHFA established "valuation allowances" at Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac to offset the value of these deferred tax assets on the theory that Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac were unlikely to be profitable enough in the future to use them. The valuation allowances created paper losses that required the Companies to draw significant amounts of capital from Treasury at the high agreed-upon dividend rates, thus increasing the value of Treasury's liquidation preference. The Companies' valuation allowances eventually reached a combined amount of approximately $100 billion. These allowances, together with 10% cash dividends on the capital drawn, represented the substantial majority of Treasury's Senior Preferred Stock investment.

14. By mid-2012, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac began to experience a vigorous recovery, pulling in profits of $7.8 billion and $3.5 billion, respectively, in the first half of the year alone. In 2012, it also became clear that many of FHFA's early write-downs, including valuation allowances for deferred tax assets, would soon be reversed and generate massive profits. Given the return to profitability, it became evident that those valuation allowances would likely be reversed, a decision that would add tens of billions of dollars to the Companies' balance sheets and eventually generate cash available for distribution to stockholders other than Treasury after paying Treasury its dividends on account of the Senior Preferred Stock.

15. Rather than use the valuation allowances to build capital and stabilize the Companies' balance sheets, FHFA, at the direction of Treasury, came up with a plan that would give Treasury, and no other stockholders in the Companies, the benefit of this new profitability in the form of cash payments, all without reducing the value of Treasury's liquidation preference by a single dollar. The government called the plan the "Net Worth Sweep." In August 2012, just days after Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac had announced their earnings for the second quarter, FHFA entered into a third amendment of each of the Amended and Restated Senior Preferred Stock Purchase Agreements (the "Third Amendment") and agreed to amend the Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac Senior Preferred Stock Certificates of Designation. These amendments changed the preferred dividend on Treasury's Senior Preferred Stock in the Companies from one payable at the previously established 10% cash (and 12% in-kind) rate to a perpetual quarterly "dividend" equal to the entire positive net worth of each of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac (with the exception of a $3 billion capital reserve amount for each Company for 2013, gradually decreasing to zero for each Company on January 1, 2018). The Companies and their private stockholders received no additional investments or value of any sort in exchange for entering into the Net Worth Sweep.

16. The Net Worth Sweep circumvented the rules of priority under the charters of each Company and expropriated for the government the remaining value of the preferred stock and common stock still held by private investors. Treasury and FHFA have both acknowledged that, under this unprecedented structure, Treasury will receive—in perpetuity—any and all profits that Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac earn. Thus, it will be impossible for either Company to ever have a positive net worth, to ever pay a dividend on account of another class or series of stock, or to ever emerge from conservatorship and return to private market control.

17. Treasury has already reaped enormous benefits from the Net Worth Sweep. Following their planned September 2015 "dividend" payments to Treasury of $4.4 billion and $3.9 billion, respectively, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac will have paid $142.5 billion and $96.5 billion to Treasury, respectively (including both cash dividends previously paid at the 10% rate and amounts paid pursuant to the Net Worth Sweep). Yet Treasury and FHFA maintain that these payments represent earnings on Treasury's investment, rather than a return of capital invested, such that the liquidation preference of the Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac Senior Preferred Stock has not changed and remains at $117.1 billion and $72.3 billion, respectively.

18. The Net Worth Sweep has stripped Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac of their ability to rebuild their capital reserves or to ever again distribute dividends or otherwise deliver any value to Plaintiffs or the other members of the Classes holding stock in the Companies. Furthermore, neither Fannie Mae nor Freddie Mac is permitted to redeem Treasury's Senior Preferred Stock. Moreover, by appropriating the entirety of the Companies' net worth for the government's coffers on a quarterly basis in perpetuity, the Net Worth Sweep has effectively eliminated the Classes' contractual and stockholder rights and the economic value of their stock.

19. Plaintiffs and the other members of the Classes paid valuable consideration in exchange for the Companies' stock in reliance on the legal rights and privileges of these instruments under law. In doing so, Plaintiffs and the other members of the Classes helped provide financial support for the Companies' businesses both before and after the imposition of the conservatorship.

20. Fannie Mae's and Freddie Mac's continued profitability over the past few years has enabled them not only to pay out to Treasury an amount equal to all of the money they drew down from Treasury, but also to pay an additional $26.4 billion and $25.2 billion, respectively (following the September 2015 "dividend" payments). But for the Net Worth Sweep, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac would be capable of paying billions in dollars in profits to the holders of their other classes and series of stock, including Plaintiffs and the other members of the Classes. Due to the Net Worth Sweep, that money will instead accrue to Treasury—forever. Treasury will receive a massive windfall above and beyond its pre-Net Worth Sweep contractual entitlements, and Plaintiffs and the other members of the Classes will receive nothing.

21. As explained below, the Net Worth Sweep is an illegal term for any preferred stock instrument. The Net Worth Sweep violates the DGCL and VSCA and therefore is void and unenforceable. Accordingly, this action seeks, among other things, directly on behalf of the Classes and derivatively on behalf of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, a declaration that the Net Worth Sweep is void and unenforceable under Delaware and Virginia law, rescission of the Net Worth Sweep, and an award of compensatory damages to Plaintiffs and the Classes, and to Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, as well as restitution and disgorgement of the monies paid to Treasury pursuant to the Net Worth Sweep.

FACTS

A. FANNIE MAE AND FREDDIE MAC

30. Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac are stockholder-owned corporations organized and existing under the Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation Act, respectively. Fannie Mae was established in 1938 as a federal agency to provide the mortgage market with supplemental liquidity, and was converted to a private corporation in 1968. Freddie Mac was created as an alternative to Fannie Mae to make the secondary mortgage market more competitive and efficient. Both Companies are private corporations that Congress created to increase mortgage market liquidity. They seek to accomplish this by purchasing mortgages that private banks originate and bundling them into mortgage-related securities to be sold to investors. Through the creation of this secondary mortgage market, the Companies increase liquidity for private banks, which enables them to make additional loans to individuals for home purchases.

31. Notwithstanding the Companies' government charters, private stockholders own Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. Before the imposition of the conservatorships in 2008, in the course of their operations as privately owned, for-profit entities, the Companies issued both common stock and several series of preferred stock. The Companies' securities were considered to be safe investments. Before 2007, the Companies were consistently profitable. In fact, prior to that time, the most recent full-year loss for Fannie Mae was in 1985, while Freddie Mac had never experienced an annual loss. The Companies regularly declared and paid dividends on their common and preferred stock. Despite the imposition of conservatorships in 2008, the Companies continue to have private stockholders whose ownership interests were not altered by the conservatorships, and who continue to own the Companies alongside Treasury.

32. Federal law authorizes each of the Companies to designate “the law of the jurisdiction in which [its] principal office . . . is located, [or] . . . [the] Delaware General Corporation Law” for purposes of its corporate governance practices and procedures. 12 C.F.R. § 1710.10. Fannie Mae has elected Delaware law to apply pursuant to Section 1.05 of its bylaws, which provides, in pertinent part, that “the corporation has elected to follow the applicable corporate governance practices and procedures of the Delaware General Corporation Law.” Freddie Mac has elected Virginia law to apply pursuant to Section 11.3 of its bylaws, which provides, in pertinent part, that “the Corporation shall follow the corporate governance practices and procedures of the law of the Commonwealth of Virginia, including without limitation the Virginia Stock Corporation Act as the same may be amended from time to time.” Under both Delaware and Virginia law, as applied to Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, respectively, pursuant to federal law, preferred stock designations are deemed as amendments to a corporation’s charter and are therefore generally viewed as contractual in nature. In addition, directors and officers of corporations owe fiduciary duties to corporate stockholders and to the corporate business entity, and a majority or controlling stockholder owes fiduciary duties to the company and to minority stockholders.

B. THE COMPANIES ARE PLACED INTO CONSERVATORSHIP

33. Beginning in 2006, a global financial crisis and nationwide declines in the housing market caused the Companies to suffer losses. Despite these losses, the Companies remained adequately capitalized and, as described by OFHEO director James Lockhart, “safe and sound.”

34. In July 2008, Congress enacted HERA, establishing FHFA to replace the OFHEO as the Companies’ regulator, and granting Treasury temporary authority to assist the Companies through the purchase of securities. HERA was passed not because Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac was deemed to be insolvent or operating unsafely at that time, but rather to provide the struggling mortgage and financial markets with added confidence.

35. Despite the Companies being adequately capitalized—indeed, Fannie Mae’s and Freddie Mac’s assets exceeded their liabilities by $50 billion in the aggregate—and operating in a safe and sound fashion, on September 6, 2008, FHFA placed the Companies into conservatorship and, in a press release issued the next day, said that, “as the conservator, FHFA will assume the power of the Board and management.” According to FHFA’s press release, the conservatorship was “a statutory process designed to stabilize a troubled institution with the objective of returning the entities to normal business operations. FHFA will act as the conservator to operate the Enterprises until they are stabilized.” At the time, FHFA also stated that, “the common and all preferred stocks [of the Companies] will continue to remain outstanding.”

36. The very next day, FHFA, acting in its purported capacity as conservator for the Companies, and Treasury entered into two virtually identical senior preferred stock purchase agreements (the PSPAs), pursuant to which each of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac created and issued a new class of stock, the Senior Preferred Stock. The Senior Preferred Stock was created pursuant to two virtually identical Senior Preferred Stock Certificates of Designation (one each for Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac) (the “Certificates of Designation”) that set forth the rights, powers and preferences of the Senior Preferred Stock. Treasury purchased 1 million shares of each Company’s Senior Preferred Stock in exchange for a funding commitment that allowed each Company to draw up to $100 billion from Treasury (this cap was later increased in size by two subsequent amendments to the PSPAs, first to $200 billion each and then to an amount established by a formula that may be greater (but not less) than $200 billion each, adjusting for the amount of any deficiencies experienced by the Companies in 2010, 2011 and 2012 and any surplus existing as of December 31, 2012). The 1 million shares of each Company’s Senior Preferred Stock have an aggregate liquidation preference equal to $1 billion ($1,000 per share) plus the sum of all additional amounts paid by Treasury pursuant to draws that each Company has made on Treasury’s funding commitment. Treasury, as the holder of the Senior Preferred Stock, also was eligible to receive a cumulative cash dividend of 10% of the outstanding liquidation preference (12% if the dividend were paid in kind). Absent the express consent of Treasury and FHFA, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac generally cannot redeem the Senior Preferred Stock. Through the PSPAs, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac also provided Treasury with warrants to purchase 79.9% of their common stock (for virtually no consideration), respectively, and entered into covenants barring the Companies from, among other things, making any changes to their capital structures, paying any dividends (other than to Treasury), or seeking to terminate FHFA’s conservatorship without Treasury’s approval (so long as the Senior Preferred Stock remained outstanding).

37. Under the initial PSPAs, Treasury committed to make quarterly payments to the Companies to ensure that the Companies would maintain at least a zero net worth. Each quarter, FHFA looked to each Company’s financial statements to determine if its liabilities exceeded its assets. If so, FHFA would request that Treasury draw down the Company’s funding commitment and provide funds equal to the net worth deficit. The draws taken by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac largely were necessitated by the tax write-downs and increases in loss reserves, which had greatly depleted their balance sheets. As noted, each quarterly payment made pursuant to a draw-down increased the aggregate liquidation preference of the Senior Preferred Stock on a dollar-for-dollar basis.

38. Soon after the commencement of the conservatorship, FHFA, acting in its purported capacity as conservator of the Companies, declared that the Companies had suffered substantial non-cash accounting losses, which included write-downs of the value of tax assets and loss reserves. By 2012, it became clear that these projected losses had been overestimated by more than $100 billion.

C. THE COMPANIES RECOVER AND RETURN TO PROFITABILITY, BUT FHFA AND TREASURY SEIZE ALL OF THEIR NET WORTH AND PROFITS IN PERPETUITY THROUGH THE NET WORTH SWEEP

39. Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac returned to profitability in 2012. That year, Fannie Mae earned $17.2 billion in profits and Freddie Mac earned $11 billion in profits. The Companies became even more profitable in 2013 ($84 billion and $51.6 billion, respectively) and remained profitable in 2014 ($14.2 billion and $9.4 billion, respectively).

40. The return of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac to profitability in 2012 led to a substantial increase in the trading prices of the Companies' preferred stock.

41. With the Companies having returned to profitability, their stockholders had reason to believe that they would in time regain a return on their investment. They also had a reasonable expectation that the Companies would eventually be healthy enough to redeem Treasury's Senior Preferred Stock, exit conservatorship, and be "return[ed] to normal business operations," as FHFA's director had vowed when the conservatorships were established.

42. These reasonable expectations of the Companies' stockholders were soon dashed, however, due to the federal government's self-dealing. To capitalize on the Companies' strong recovery (and ensure that their stockholders could not capitalize on it), Treasury and FHFA decided to amend the PSPAs such that rather than taking 10% of the liquidation preference as a dividend, Treasury would instead take the entire positive net worth of each of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac each quarter in perpetuity. No consideration was paid to the Companies or their stockholders in exchange for the Net Worth Sweep.

43. Specifically, the Third Amendment to the PSPAs and the corresponding Amended and Restated Senior Preferred Stock Certificates of Designation provide, in pertinent part, as follows:

. . . For each Dividend Period from January 1, 2013, holders of outstanding shares of Senior Preferred Stock shall be entitled to receive, ratably, when, as and if declared by the Board of Directors, in its sole discretion, out of funds legally available therefor, cumulative cash dividends in an amount equal to the then-current Dividend Amount.

* * *

For each Dividend Period from January 1, 2013, through and including December 31, 2017, the "Dividend Amount" for a Dividend Period means the amount, if any, by which the Net Worth Amount at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter, less the Applicable Capital Reserve Amount, exceeds zero. For each Dividend Period from January 1, 2018, the "Dividend Amount" for a Dividend Period means the amount, if any, by which the Net Worth Amount at the end of the immediately preceding fiscal quarter exceeds zero. In each case, "Net Worth Amount" means (i) the total assets of the Company (such assets excluding the Commitment and any unfunded amounts thereof) as reflected on the balance sheet of the Company as of the applicable date set forth in this Certificate, prepared in accordance with GAAP, less (ii) the total liabilities of the Company (such liabilities excluding any obligation in respect of any capital stock of the Company, including this Certificate), as reflected on the balance sheet of the Company as of the applicable date set forth in this Certificate, prepared in accordance with GAAP. “Applicable Capital Reserve Amount” means, as of any date of determination, for each Dividend Period from January 1, 2013, through and including December 31, 2013, $3,000,000,000; and for each Dividend Period occurring within each 12-month period thereafter, $3,000,000,000 reduced by an equal amount for each such 12-month period through and including December 31, 2017, so that for each Dividend Period from January 1, 2018, the Applicable Capital Reserve Amount shall be zero. For the avoidance of doubt, if the calculation of the Dividend Amount for a Dividend Period does not exceed zero, then no Dividend Amount shall accrue or be payable for such Dividend Period.

(emphasis added).

44. The above-quoted provisions implement the Net Worth Sweep, by which, from January 1, 2013 through December 31, 2017, each Company pays to Treasury, in the form of a purported “dividend,” that particular Company’s “Net Worth Amount” (i.e., total assets less total liabilities) less the “Applicable Capital Reserve Amount” (which starts at $3 billion and decreases to $0 by January 1, 2018). Beginning January 1, 2018 and continuing in perpetuity, the Net Worth Amount will be paid out each quarter to Treasury without any capital reserve whatsoever.

45. The Net Worth Sweep “dividends” are cumulative. If the Net Worth Amount is greater than zero and the board of directors does not declare a “dividend” on the Senior Preferred Stock, then the “dividend” accumulates. Under the Certificates of Designation, no dividends may ever be paid on any other classes or series of stock of either Company unless and until full cumulative “dividends” (i.e., the full Net Worth Sweep amount) are paid on the Senior Preferred Stock pursuant to the Net Worth Sweep. Because the entire net worth of each Company is payable in perpetuity to the Senior Preferred Stock, there necessarily will be no remaining assets from which dividends ever could be paid on other classes or series of stock.

46. The Net Worth Sweep constituted a massive expropriation of value from the Companies and the Classes. While the Companies were on track to repay Treasury and the taxpayers every dollar they were owed with interest, that was not enough for FHFA and Treasury. Rather, FHFA and Treasury chose to seize the totality of the Companies' profits and net worth in perpetuity. The President of the United States' proposed fiscal year 2014 budget estimated that Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac will together pay $238.5 billion in dividends to Treasury over the next ten years, far outstripping the government's investments.

47. The Net Worth Sweep has already resulted in historic payments to the Treasury. Following their announced September 2015 "dividends" pursuant to the Net Worth Sweep, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac will have paid a total of $142.5 billion and $96.5 billion to Treasury, respectively.

48. However, under the PSPAs, even these substantial payments do not reduce the Companies' obligation to Treasury, since these payments cannot be used to offset prior Treasury draws. Accordingly, Treasury still maintains a liquidation preference of $117.1 billion with respect to Fannie Mae ($116.1 billion in draw downs plus the initial liquidation preference of $1 billion) and $72.3 billion with respect to Freddie Mac ($71.3 billion in draw-downs plus the initial liquidation preference of $1 billion). As a result of the Net Worth Sweep, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac have no way to ever pay down these liquidation preferences, no matter how much cash they contribute to Treasury's coffers.

49. Following the public announcement of the Net Worth Sweep, the market prices of the Companies' preferred stock suffered dramatic declines. The Companies' common stock also suffered steep declines in market price.

D. THE NET WORTH SWEEP VIOLATES DELAWARE AND VIRGINIA LAW

50. As noted herein, Delaware and Virginia corporate law are the rules of decision for Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac for corporate governance purposes.

51. Under Delaware and Virginia corporate law, preferred stock of a corporation cannot be given a cumulative dividend right equal to all the net worth of the corporation in perpetuity. The Net Worth Sweep represents an unlawful confiscation of the entire economic value of the Companies and their other classes and series of stock. The Net Worth Sweep is an illegal term for any preferred stock instrument, whether or not held by the federal government.

52. The Net Worth Sweep violates Section 151(c) of the DGCL, which provides:

The holders of preferred or special stock of any class or of any series thereof shall be entitled to receive dividends at such rates, on such conditions and at such times as shall be stated in the certificate of incorporation or in the resolution or resolutions providing for the issue of such stock adopted by the board of directors as hereinabove provided, payable in preference to, or in such relation to, the dividends payable on any other class or classes or of any other series of stock, and cumulative or noncumulative as shall be so stated and expressed. When dividends upon the preferred and special stocks, if any, to the extent of the preference to which such stocks are entitled, shall have been paid or declared and set apart for payment, a dividend on the remaining class or classes or series of stock may then be paid out of the remaining assets of the corporation available for dividends as elsewhere in this chapter provided.

8 Del. C. § 151(c) (emphasis added).

53. Specifically, the Net Worth Sweep “dividend” is not paid at a “rate” because Treasury’s participation in Fannie Mae’s (and Freddie Mac’s) earnings growth is unlimited, absolute, and perpetual. While preferred stockholders may have priority over common stockholders in the receipt of dividends, such dividends are necessarily limited as a preference and do not appreciate in an absolute and unlimited manner with the growth of the corporation.

54. As a result of the Net Worth Sweep, dividends on the Senior Preferred Stock also are not “payable in preference to, or in . . . relation to, the dividends payable on any other class or classes or of any other series of stock[.]” 8 Del. C. § 151(c). Rather, the Net Worth Sweep is payable to the absolute and permanent exclusion of dividends payable on other classes or series of Fannie Mae stock, because, after payment of the Net Worth Sweep each quarter, there are no remaining assets of the Company available for dividends on any other classes or series of stock.

55. For the same reasons, the Net Worth Sweep violates Virginia law, see Va. Code § 13.1-638 (providing that a corporation may authorize “one or more classes or series of shares that . . . have preference over any other class or series of shares with respect to distributions [such as dividends]” (emphasis added)), which does not permit corporations to enter into unconditional agreements to pay dividends so as to preclude all other classes and series of stock from the potential to receive dividends in perpetuity. Virginia law requires that dividend preferences be “limited” and “definitely fixed,” and that dividends paid on preferred stock must be payable “in preference to” the dividends paid on junior stock. As such, the Net Worth Sweep violates Virginia corporate law applicable to Freddie Mac.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

56. With respect to Counts 1 and 3 hereof, Plaintiffs bring this action on behalf of themselves and as a class action pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(a) and 23(b) on behalf of a Class consisting of all persons and entities who held shares of any series of Fannie Mae preferred stock and who were damaged thereby (the “Fannie Preferred Class”). Excluded from the Fannie Preferred Class are the Defendants.

57. With respect to Counts 2 and 4 hereof, Plaintiffs bring this action on behalf of themselves and as a class action pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(a) and 23(b) on behalf of a Class consisting of all persons and entities who held shares of any series of Freddie Mac preferred stock and who were damaged thereby (the “Freddie Preferred Class”). Excluded from the Freddie Preferred Class are the Defendants.

58. With respect to Counts 1 and 3 hereof, Plaintiffs bring this action on behalf of themselves and as a class action pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(a) and 23(b) on behalf of a Class consisting of all persons and entities who held shares of Fannie Mae common stock and who were damaged thereby (the “Fannie Common Class,” and, together with the Fannie Preferred Class, the “Fannie Classes”). Excluded from the Fannie Common Class are the Defendants.

59. With respect to Counts 2 and 4 hereof, Plaintiffs bring this action on behalf of themselves and as a class action pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(a) and 23(b) on behalf of a Class consisting of all persons and entities who held shares of Freddie Mac common stock and who were damaged thereby (the “Freddie Common Class,” and, together with the Freddie Preferred Class, the “Freddie Classes”). Excluded from the Freddie Common Class are the Defendants.

60. The Fannie Preferred Class, Freddie Preferred Class, Fannie Common Class and Freddie Common Class are referred to herein collectively as the “Classes.”

61. The members of the Classes are so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable. While the exact number of Class members is unknown to Plaintiffs at this time and can only be ascertained through appropriate discovery, Plaintiffs believe that there are at least thousands of members in the proposed Classes. As of August 17, 2012, and the date of the filing of this action, there were hundreds of millions of shares of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac preferred and common stock outstanding. Record owners and other members of the Classes may be identified from records maintained by the Companies and/or their transfer agent(s) and may be notified of the pendency of this action by mail, using the form of notice similar to that customarily used in securities class actions.

62. Plaintiffs' claims are typical of the claims of the other members of the Classes as all members of the Classes held Fannie Mae and/or Freddie Mac common and/or preferred stock and were similarly affected by Defendants' wrongful conduct that is complained of herein.

63. Plaintiffs will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the members of the Classes and have retained counsel competent and experienced in class action, derivative and securities litigation. Plaintiffs have no interests that are adverse or antagonistic to the Classes.

64. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy. Because the damages suffered by individual members of the Classes may be relatively small, the expense and burden of individual litigation make it impracticable for Class members individually to seek redress for the wrongful conduct alleged herein.

65. Common questions of law and fact exist as to all members of the Classes, and predominate over any questions solely affecting individual members of the Classes. Among the questions of law and fact common to the Classes are:

- a) Whether the Net Worth Sweep is void and unenforceable as a matter of Delaware and/or Virginia law;
- b) Whether Treasury was unjustly enriched by the Net Worth Sweep; and
- c) Whether the members of the Classes are entitled to equitable relief, including rescission of the Net Worth Sweep, and/or whether one or more Defendants are liable for damages to the members of the Classes, and the proper measure thereof.

66. The prosecution of separate actions by individual Class members would create the risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications with respect to the individual Class members, which would establish incompatible standards of conduct for Defendants, or adjudications with respect to individual Class members that would, as a practical matter, be dispositive of the interests of the other members not parties to the adjudications or substantially impair their ability to protect their interests.

67. Defendants have acted on grounds generally applicable to the Classes with respect to the matters complained of herein, thereby making appropriate the relief sought herein with respect to the Classes as a whole.

DERIVATIVE AND DEMAND FUTILITY ALLEGATIONS

68. With respect to Counts 1 and 3 hereof, Plaintiff Jacobs brings this action derivatively on behalf of and for the benefit of Fannie Mae to redress injuries suffered by Fannie Mae as a direct and proximate result of the wrongdoing alleged herein. With respect to Counts 2 and 4 hereof, Plaintiff Jacobs brings this action derivatively on behalf of and for the benefit of Freddie Mac to redress injuries suffered by Freddie Mac as a direct and proximate result of the wrongdoing alleged herein. This action is not a collusive one to confer jurisdiction that the court would otherwise lack.

69. Plaintiff Jacobs is a holder of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac preferred stock, was a holder of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac preferred stock prior to and on August 17, 2012, and has been a holder of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac preferred stock continuously since then.

70. Plaintiff intends to retain his shares of the Companies' stock throughout the duration of this litigation.

71. Plaintiff has retained counsel that is competent and experienced in class action, derivative and securities litigation.

72. Plaintiff will adequately and fairly represent the interests of the Companies and their stockholders in enforcing and prosecuting their rights.

73. The wrongdoing and violations of law complained of herein subject, and will persist in subjecting, the Companies to continuing irreparable harm because the adverse consequences of the injurious actions are still in effect and ongoing.

74. To the extent any demand requirement with respect to FHFA would otherwise be applicable in this context, such demand is excused and Plaintiff is entitled to pursue the derivative claims alleged herein as a result of FHFA's manifest conflict of interest and because FHFA faces a substantial threat of liability.

75. Treasury as an investor exercises de facto control over the Companies, including through its Senior Preferred Stock and warrants to purchase the Companies' common stock, as well as Treasury's control of the provision of funds to the Companies, Treasury's consent rights over the Companies repaying the Senior Preferred Stock or exiting conservatorship, and Treasury's influence over FHFA officials, many of whom were employees of Treasury. With such de facto power over the Companies' financial condition and operations, Treasury is in a position to, and does, direct FHFA with respect to determinations affecting the Companies and their stockholders.

76. FHFA is interested in and benefits from the Net Worth Sweep as an agency of the federal government, and cannot reasonably be expected to initiate litigation seeking a declaration that the Net Worth Sweep is invalid, rescission of the Net Worth Sweep, and damages resulting from the Net Worth Sweep. Indeed, Treasury and FHFA, as arms of the federal government, have manifest conflicts of interest with respect to the claims asserted herein. Treasury and FHFA also face substantial threats of liability with respect to the claims asserted herein.

77. Notwithstanding its fiduciary duties to Fannie Mae and its stockholders, FHFA has expressly acknowledged that it does not act with the interests of Fannie Mae stockholders in mind. Indeed, Fannie Mae's 2008 Form 10-K filing frankly disclosed that, since the imposition of the conservatorship, the Company was “[n]o longer managed with a strategy to maximize common shareholder returns.” FHFA has made substantially similar statements with respect to Freddie Mac, disclosing in the Company’s 2008 Form 10-K that, during the conservatorship, the Company was “[n]o longer managed with a strategy to maximize common stockholder returns.”

78. Accordingly, FHFA is incapable of pursuing the derivative claims for the wrongdoing alleged herein.

CAUSES OF ACTION

COUNT I

Fannie Mae and Fannie Classes

Direct and Derivative Claims for Declaratory, Equitable and Compensatory Relief The Net Worth Sweep Is Void and Unenforceable Because Such a Term is Not Permitted by Delaware Law Applicable to Preferred Stock

79. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference and reallege each and every allegation set forth in this complaint, as though fully set forth herein.

80. Pursuant to its enabling legislation, applicable federal law, and Section 1.05 of its bylaws, Fannie Mae has designated that the DGCL controls for purposes of its corporate governance practices and procedures.

81. Under Delaware law, preferred stock of a corporation cannot be given a cumulative dividend right equal to all the net worth of the corporation in perpetuity. The Net Worth Sweep therefore is an illegal term for any preferred stock instrument, whether or not held by the federal government.

82. Section 151 of the DGCL allows preferred stockholders to receive dividends “at such rates, on such conditions and at such times as shall be stated in the certificate of incorporation or in the [board] resolution” 8 Del. C. § 151(c) (emphasis added). Preferred stock dividends must be made “payable in preference to, or in . . . relation to, the dividends payable on any other class or classes or of any other series of stock[.]” Id. (emphasis added). Section 151 does not permit a provision requiring that a series of preferred stock receive a quarterly dividend equal to the entire net worth of a corporation to the necessary exclusion (in perpetuity) of any dividends ever being paid on junior stock. In fact, Section 151(c) specifically contemplates that, after payment of preferential dividends on senior preferred stock, “a dividend on the remaining class or classes or series of stock may then be paid out of the remaining assets of the corporation available for dividends” Id.

83. Because the Net Worth Sweep diverts, in perpetuity, all of the net worth of Fannie Mae to Treasury, it neither is paid at a “rate” nor is it payable “in preference to” or “in relation to” the dividends payable to other classes or series of stock. The Net Worth Sweep is not paid at a “rate” because Treasury’s participation in corporate earnings growth is unlimited, absolute, and perpetual. The Net Worth Sweep is not payable “in preference to” or “in relation to” the dividends payable to other classes or series of stock because it is payable to the absolute, permanent exclusion of dividends to other stockholders. Once the Net Worth Sweep is paid each quarter, there necessarily will be no assets remaining in the Company that would ever be available for the payment of dividends on any other classes or series of stock regardless of how valuable the Company may become in the future. Accordingly, the Net Worth Sweep is invalid under Section 151(c) of the DGCL and is void ab initio and unenforceable.

84. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201-2202, Plaintiffs request that the Court enter an Order declaring that the Net Worth Sweep is void and unenforceable under Delaware law.

85. As a direct and proximate result of the wrongful implementation of the Net Worth Sweep, Fannie Mae and its stockholders, including Plaintiffs and the Fannie Classes, have suffered damages.

86. Fannie Mae, Plaintiffs and the Fannie Classes have no adequate remedy at law.

COUNT II
Freddie Mac and Freddie Classes
Direct and Derivative Claims for Declaratory, Equitable and Compensatory Relief
The Net Worth Sweep Is Void and Unenforceable Because
Such a Term is Not Permitted by Virginia Law Applicable to Preferred Stock

87. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference and reallege each and every allegation set forth in this complaint, as though fully set forth herein.

88. Pursuant to its enabling legislation and Section 11.3 of its bylaws, Freddie Mac has designated that the VSCA controls for purposes of its corporate governance practices and procedures.

89. Under Virginia law, preferred stock of a corporation cannot be given a cumulative dividend right equal to all the net worth of the corporation in perpetuity. The Net Worth Sweep therefore is an illegal term for any preferred stock instrument, whether or not held by the federal government.

90. The VSCA provides that a corporation may authorize “one or more classes or series of shares that . . . have preference over any other class or series of shares with respect to distributions [such as dividends].” Va. Code § 13.1-638 (emphasis added). While there is no question that the VSCA permits corporations to establish a dividend “preference” that operates as a priority, it does not permit corporations to establish a dividend preference that operates to preclude all other classes of stockholders from the potential to receive dividends in perpetuity.

91. Accordingly, the Net Worth Sweep is invalid under the VSCA and is void ab initio and unenforceable.

92. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201-2202, Plaintiffs request that the Court enter an Order declaring that the Net Worth Sweep is void and unenforceable under Virginia law.

93. As a direct and proximate result of the wrongful implementation of the Net Worth Sweep, Freddie Mac and its stockholders, including Plaintiffs and the Freddie Classes, have suffered damages.

94. Freddie Mac, Plaintiffs and the Freddie Classes have no adequate remedy at law.

COUNT III
Fannie Mae and Fannie Classes
Direct and Derivative Claims for Unjust Enrichment

95. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference and reallege each and every allegation set forth in this complaint, as though fully set forth herein.

96. Treasury caused FHFA to enter into, and Treasury agreed to, the Net Worth Sweep and thereafter received substantial dividends pursuant to the Net Worth Sweep, all in violation of Delaware law. Treasury was unjustly enriched at the expense and to the detriment of Fannie Mae and the Fannie Classes.

97. Treasury as an investor exercises de facto control over the Companies, including through its Senior Preferred Stock and warrants to purchase the Companies' common stock, as well as Treasury's control of the provision of funds to the Companies, Treasury's consent rights over the Companies repaying the Senior Preferred Stock or exiting conservatorship, and Treasury's influence over FHFA officials, many of whom were employees of Treasury. With such de facto power over the Companies' financial condition and operations, Treasury is in a position to, and does, direct FHFA with respect to determinations affecting the Companies and their stockholders, and did exercise such control in connection with the Net Worth Sweep.

98. The Net Worth Sweep effected an unjust enrichment of economic value from the Company's other stockholders to Treasury.

99. Treasury has been, and stands in a position to continue to be, enriched at Fannie Mae's and the Fannie Classes' expense. It would be unjust and inequitable to allow Treasury to retain the benefits of the Net Worth Sweep, which is invalid under the DGCL and resulted in the payment of significant dividends to Treasury in violation of Delaware law. Thus, Fannie Mae and the Fannie Classes seek restitution from Treasury of all dividends received pursuant to the Net Worth Sweep.

100. Sovereign immunity for this claim for other than money damages has been waived by 5 U.S.C. § 702.

101. Fannie Mae and the Fannie Classes have no adequate remedy at law.

COUNT IV
Freddie Mac and Freddie Classes
Direct and Derivative Claims for Unjust Enrichment

102. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference and reallege each and every allegation set forth in this complaint, as though fully set forth herein.

103. Treasury caused FHFA to enter into, and Treasury agreed to, the Net Worth Sweep and thereafter received substantial dividends pursuant to the Net Worth Sweep, all in violation of Virginia law. Treasury was unjustly enriched at the expense and to the detriment of Freddie Mac and the Freddie Classes.

104. Treasury as an investor exercises de facto control over the Companies, including through its Senior Preferred Stock and warrants to purchase the Companies' common stock, as well as Treasury's control of the provision of funds to the Companies, Treasury's consent rights over the Companies repaying the Senior Preferred Stock or exiting conservatorship, and Treasury's influence over FHFA officials, many of whom were employees of Treasury. With such de facto power over the Companies' financial condition and operations, Treasury is in a position to, and does, direct FHFA with respect to determinations affecting the Companies and their stockholders, and did exercise such control in connection with the Net Worth Sweep.

105. The Net Worth Sweep effected an unjust enrichment of economic value from the Company's other stockholders to Treasury.

106. Treasury has been, and stands in a position to continue to be, enriched at Freddie Mac's and the Freddie Classes' expense. It would be unjust and inequitable to allow Treasury to retain the benefits of the Net Worth Sweep, which is invalid under the VSCA and resulted in the payment of significant dividends to Treasury in violation of Virginia law. Thus, Freddie Mac and the Freddie Classes seek restitution from Treasury of all dividends received pursuant to the Net Worth Sweep.

107. Sovereign immunity for this claim for other than money damages has been waived by 5 U.S.C. § 702.

108. Freddie Mac and the Freddie Classes have no adequate remedy at law.
